

Shannon Crowley
Manager
blumshapiro

As a manager in blumshapiro's Accounting and Auditing Department based in Quincy, Shannon oversees audit and risk assessment engagements and is responsible for engagement planning, staff supervision and coordination with client personnel to ensure successful completion of projects. Shannon has over 12 years of experience working with clients in a variety of industries, specializing in healthcare, independent schools, nonprofit and employee benefit plans.

Shannon is a member of several of blum's internal committees, including the Women Who Lead Social Network comprised of senior-level personnel actively helping to clear advancement barriers for women through guidance, coaching and advocacy, as well as offering honest feedback and advice to employees about how to support the women they work with.

Shannon is the formal advisor and peer mentor to multiple staff at blum. She is also involved in teaching CPEs at blum to help others further their careers.

Shannon is an active member of several professional organizations, including Massachusetts Senior Care Association, LeadingAge Massachusetts, Massachusetts Nonprofit Network, Massachusetts Council of Human Service Providers and the Association of Independent schools of New England.

Prior to joining blum in 2011, Shannon worked as a healthcare supervisor at a Feeley & Driscoll; a senior business auditor at Northeastern University; and a supervisor at Harvard Medical School. Shannon is a graduate of Saint Anselm College and holds a Master of Science in Accounting from Northeastern University. Shannon has been a certified public accountant since 2007 and is a member of the ACIPA and MSCPA.

Shannon is a graduate of Marshfield High School and resides in Marshfield with her husband Brian and sons, Keegan (5) and Austin (3). Shannon is actively involved with the community and is an active committee member of the Boys and Girls Club of Marshfield.

